PREFACE.

ALTHOUGH this edition of Webster's Academic Dictionary is an entirely new book abridged directly from Webster's International Dictionary, care has been taken to preserve in it the essential features of the former Webster's Academic Dictionary (originally prepared by Mr. William G. Webster and later revised by Mr. William A. Wheeler) which have made it a favorite as a comprehensive dictionary of small size and cost. The alterations consist chiefly in the increase of the amount of matter, the improvements in typography, the method of indicating pronunciation, the use of new and better illustrations (the number has been increased from 350 to over 800), and other changes intended either to improve the appearance of the work, or to make it more serviceable, accurate, and complete.

The excellent typography of the International has been entirely adopted, and the page has been printed with two instead of three columns, which not only improves the appearance and promotes the facility of reference, but also gives room for the insertion of larger illustrations.

The enlargement of the vocabulary, made possible by the addition of more than 150 pages and by the omission of the definitions of some self-explaining derivatives, has permitted the introduction not only of new definitions and literary words, but also of the many modern scientific terms which have found their way into common use.

The pronunciation is clearly shown by respelling the words with diacritically marked letters whose sounds are explained in the key lines at the bottom of the pages, and more fully in the Guide to Pronunciation. Even the sounds of vowels in unaccented syllables have been indicated.

In definition great care has been taken to follow the excellent Websterian tradition of giving a clear descriptive definition of the word, avoiding as far as possible definition by synonyms alone. At the same time greater fullness has been given to the lists of synonyms following the descriptive definitions, and to discriminations between synonyms.

The etymologies are concise, as necessitated by the scope of the work, but are believed to be in accordance with the most advanced scholarship. It will be noted that words spelled alike but derived from different sources, have been given under different vocabulary entrances, as in the case of cock, soil, sound, etc.

The list of prefixes and suffixes has been enlarged and the etymology of each indicated, and typical examples, carefully selected, have been given for each meaning. It may be used by teacher and scholar as a safe guide to the study of the formation of derivative words, and as a key to the meaning of many derivatives which are out of place in a vocabulary of this size.

In the appendix it will be observed that much space has been saved by consolidating into one the various pronouncing vocabularies of proper names. Especial attention has been devoted to amplifying and perfecting the lists of abbreviations, foreign quotations, and mythological personages.

It has been the special purpose in the present revision to meet the demand made by teachers and by the students at colleges, academies, and high schools for a reliable dictionary of ready reference, giving etymologies, pronunciations, definitions and synonyms, comprehensive and authoritative yet concise, and at the same time to adapt the book to the needs of the office and countingroom. The work is submitted to the public with the belief that this end has been attained.

GUIDE TO PRONUNCIATION.

KEY TO THE SYMBOLS.

In the RESPELLING FOR PRONUNCIATION in the Dictionary, there is employed — as shown in the Table — a symbol for every clear vowel or diphthongal sound in the language; with, in four instances, a pair of equivalents for the same sound as occurring in different situations, viz.: u = ō; u = ō; ō = g; and y (final) = i; besides æ and e, italicized, as these vowels are in certain cases obscured and turned toward the neutral form; also, apostrophes for the voice-glides; and N to indicate foreign nasalized vowels; — some of the sounds occurring only in accented and others only in unaccented syllables, and some others, with but slight difference of quality, in both. The ā, ē, and ō are used to represent the similar sounds in foreign words, but not limited as they are in English to unaccented syllables. The u is employed, as the nearest English vowel we have, inexact as it is, to replace u French and ü German; and in like manner the ē for the eu French and ö German.

The consonant letters b, d, f, h, j, k, l, m, p, r, t, v, w, and y, and the digraphs sh and ng, are used with their ordinary normal value; g, s, z, and ch are each limited to a single sound; n and th are marked for one sound of each and used unmarked for the other. No use is made of c, q, x, or the digraphs ph, gh, dg, and wh. The principal substitutions of the consonant symbols used in the respelling are noted in the Table.

N, representing simply the nasal tone (as in French or Portuguese) of the preceding vowel; as in ensemble (ān'sāmb'l), intrigante (ān'trēgānt').

' (for voice-glides), as in pardon (pār'd'n), enten (ēt'n), evil (ēv'l).

g (hard): as in go, begin, great, anger; for gu, as in guard; for gue, as in plague; for gh, as in ghost.
 s (surd, or sharp): as in so, this, haste; for c, as in cell, vice; for sc, as in scene, science; for ss, as in hiss.
 z (like s sonant): as in zone, haze; for s, as in is, lives, wise, music, ears, signs; for x, as in Xenophon, xylography.

ch (= tsh): as in chair, much; for tch, as in match, etching.

sh: for ch, as in machine, chaise, chandelier; for ce, as in ocean; for ci, as in social; for sei, as in conscious; for s, as in sure; for se, as in nauseous; for si, as in pension; for ss, as in issue; for asi, as in passion; for ti, as in nation.

zh (= ah made sonant): for z, as in azure; for zi, as in glazier, brazier; for s, as in pleasure, usual; for si, as in vision; for asi, as in abscession; for g, as in rouge, cortège.

j (= dzh): for g, as in gem, giant, engine; for gi and ge, as in religion, pigeon; for di, as in soldier; for dg, as in edge, knowledge.

k: for ch, as in chorus, epoch, anarchy; for c, as in cat, cube; for ck, as in pack, duck; for qu, as in conquer, coquette; for que, as in pique, oblique.

kw: for qu, as in queen, quit, quality.

ks (surd): for x, as in vex, exit, perplex, dextrous.

gz (sonant): for x, as in exist, exact, example.

f: for ph, as in philosophy, triumph; for gh, as in laugh, rough.

hw: for wh, as in what, why, where.

t: for ed, as in baked, crossed, capped; for th, as in thyme, Thomas.

n (the ordinary sound): as in no, none, man, many.

ng: as in long, singer; for ngue, as in tongue.

ŋ (like ng): for n before the sound of k or hard g, as in bank, junction, linger, single.

th (surd): as in thin, through, wealth, worth, breath, width.

th (sonant): for th, as in then, though, this, smooth, breathe.

NOTE. Foreign consonant sounds are represented by the nearest English equivalents.

ACCENTS AND HYPHENS. The principal accent is indicated by a heavy mark (ˈ), and the secondary accent by a lighter mark (ˊ), at the end of the syllable. Syllabic division is otherwise indicated by a light hyphen; a heavier hyphen joins the members of compound words.

The Table here appended, together with the preceding Table, furnishes a method of INDICATING PRONUNCIATION WITHOUT RESPELLING. It is, in its main features, the same as that employed in previous editions of the Dictionary, and will serve except in the case of a comparatively few words, which must be respelled. Use is made of it in this GUIDE TO PRONUNCIATION.

To each of the symbols here given, the equivalent is added that takes its place in the respelling (thus: ʔ = ō, etc.; whʔt = whōt, etc.; e = k, etc.). The unmarked letter in a digraph is to be taken as if silent; as in brēāk, brēād, hāil, yēild, vġil, etc. Silent e at the end of syllables, as in fate, etc., or in the -ed of preterites and participles, as in baked, burned, etc., need not be marked.

The method has disacritical marks applied to such consonant letters and digraphs as offer especial and frequent occasion for their use. Certain syllables, as tion, sion, tial, cial, etc., which would naturally be correctly pronounced, need not be marked or respelled. The sounds, as described, of x, ph, qu, and wh, unmarked, are what these characters will usually, but not invariably, represent.

ʔ (= ō),	as in What, Was, Quality, In'stal-'la'tion.
Ē, ȳ (= ā),	Eight, Preg, Vġin, O-bey', Un-'sign'ed-ly.
Ē, ē (= ā),	Thère, Whère, Hēir, Whère-in'.
Ēw, ew (= ā),	Ewe, Dew, Hewn, etc.; or (= ū), as in Brew.
Ēe, ee (= ē),	Eel, Feet, Fee'ble, Un-'seen', See'ing.
ȳ (= ē),	Pique, Ma-'chine', Po-'lice'.
Ī, ī (= ē),	Īrk'some, Īr, Bird, VĪr'tue, VĪr-'gin'-l-ty, E-lĪr'th.
Ō, o (= ō),	Ōoze, Dq, Whq, Tqmb, Re-mq'v'al.
ŋ (= ō or ū),	Wolŋ, Wq'm'an, Wq'l'ver-'lne', Bq's'om.
Ō, ô (= ū),	Ōth'er, Sôn, Wel'côme, Wis'dôm, Can'nâm.
Ow, ow (= ou),	Owl, Cow'ard, Vow'el, Al-'low', Bow'wow'.
Oy, oy (= oi),	Oys'ter, Boy, Roy'al, En-'joy', An-'noy'ance.
ȳ (= i),	Flȳ, Skȳ, Stȳle, De-ſȳ', Dȳ'ing.
Ȳ, ȳ (= i),	Ȳ't'ri-a, Hȳ'man, Lȳ'r'ic, Mȳ-'thol'o-gȳ.
ȳ (= ē),	Mȳ'rth, Mȳ'r'tle, Sa'tȳ'r, Mar'tȳ'r-dom.

C, e (=k), as in Cat, Concur.	d* (=j), as in Edge, Badger.
C, q (=s), " Cell, Vice.	g (=z), " Ig, Hag, Wisdom.
Ch, ch (=k), . . . " Chorus, Epoch.	g (=g*), " Exist, Example.
Ch, ch (=sh), . . . " Chaise, Machine.	x (=ks), " Vex, Exit.
G, g (=g), " Get, Begin, Anger.	Ph, ph (=f), . . . " Phantom, Sylph.
G, g (=j), " Gem, Engine.	Qu, qu (=kw), . . " Queen, Conquest.
	Wh, wh (=hw), . . " When, What.

THE VOWELS OF THE ALPHABET IN DETAIL

A.

§ 1. Ā, Ȧ: as in Āle, fāte, māik'er, pro-fāne'. The sound is otherwise represented, as in pain, day, gaol, gaug, break, veil, why, also aye (ever); and is the name sound of the letter. The vowel is called "long a."

A is diphthongal, its initial element being nearly ē in Ānd, and its vanish i in III or ē in Āve.

The vanish is heard most distinctly when the sound ends a word or an accented syllable, and it varies according to the nature of the consonant by which it is stopped.

The radical or initial element, somewhat widened, is the exceptional sound of a in many, any, Thames; and of ai in said, again, against. See § 13.

§ 2. Ā, Ȧ: a modification of the preceding vowel in syllables without accent; ranging between Ā (āle) and ē (ānd); and never taking the vanish. It occurs in the endings -ace, -age; as, pref'āce, sol'āce, rav'āge, ad'āge, etc. The ending -ate, in the case of verbs, takes Ā (āle), with accent, primary or secondary (though with the secondary accent not marked in the Dictionary); as, re-lāte, ad'vo-cāte (v.), em'u-lāte, con'ju-gāte (v.), ag'gre-gāte (v.), etc.; while, in the case of nouns and adjectives, Ȧ without the accent is commonly used; as, sen'Ȧte, prel'Ȧte, ad'vo-cȦte (n.), ag'gre-gȦte (n.), con'ju-gȦte (a.). Also, Ȧ often occurs as preceding another vowel—usually accented—in the following syllable; as, Ȧ-e'ri-al, chȦ-ot'ic, Ju'dȦ-ism. In words like mis'cel-lȦ-ny, sal'u-tȦ-ry, sump'tu-Ȧ-ry, the a, before ny or ry final, and with the preceding syllable unaccented, has properly this sound; but if the preceding syllable be accented, as in bot'a-ny, di'a-ry, sal'a-ry, pri'ma-ry, boun'da-ry, the Ȧ sound (so'fȦ), is usually preferred; yet in con'tra-ry and li'bra-ry the Ȧ is the easier to give, and in these and some others of the class is common and allowable. In final syllables, the tendency of the sound is to pass through ē to i, as in vil'lȦge, sur'fȦce, etc., in which the Ȧ is followed by a j or an s sound. The ai in moun'tain, cap'tain, etc., in the same way becomes i (III).

§ 3. Ā, Ȧ: only in syllables closed by the sound of r and more or less strongly accented; as in cāre, shāre, com-pāre', pār'ent, plow'shāre'. The sound is also represented by ē (thère); and otherwise as in air, bear, heir, prayer.

The a before r does not ordinarily take this sound when the r precedes a vowel or another r in the following syllable of the word; as in pār'i-ty, pār'ry, com-pār'i-son, chār'i-ty, etc. But the sound remains without change by an added verb inflection or the suffix -er; as in com-pār'ing, shār'er; and appears exceptionally in pār'ent, pār'ent-age, pār'ish.

The sound is the narrow correlate of the wide Ā (ām). It is not simply a prolongation of that sound; though, if we attempt such prolongation, the organs naturally slide into a position which gives the sound in question.

The difference between this sound and that of Ȧ may be readily distinguished by sounding the first syllable of charity and the word chair.

Some orthoëpists, as Walker, Smart, Stormonth, Ellis, identify this sound with Ā, or with ē prolonged, but this sound is not now commonly given in the United States.

§ 4. Ā, Ȧ: as in ām, ādd, fāt, rān'dom, hāve, pār'i-ty; also in plaid, guar'an-ty, etc.; the regular "short a." It is usually followed by a closing consonant sound, whether accented or unaccented.

As UNACCENTED, it is more commonly found in initial closed syllables: as in āl-lude', āt-tack', ān-nul'.

§ 5. Ā, Ȧ: as in ārm, fāth, fāther, āh, āmas, pāma, etc.; having equivalents as in hearth, aunt, guard, etc.; called the "Italian a."

This is the most open of all the vowel sounds. In its formation the mouth and throat are opened widely, and the tongue is left in its natural position of rest.

§ 6. Ā, ā. This is the sound to be preferred in certain words or syllables ending in ak, ff, ft, th, as, ap, st, ncc, nt, nd; as, Āak, stāff, grāft, pāth, pāss, grāsp, lāst, dānce, chānt, com-mānd'; and in some other cases; besides its frequent use in unaccented syllables, — for one class of which it will in this Dictionary be indicated by α, the Italic form of the letter. See § 7.

In organic position, ā lies between ā in ām, and ā in ārm. The main part of the tongue is raised higher than in ārm, and the mouth is not so widely opened.

In UNACCENTED SYLLABLES this sound (ā) is of frequent occurrence, though in rapid speech more or less obscured and often falling into the neutral form.

In open syllables unaccented, as in ā-rise', dī'ā-dem, cā-lor'ic, ma'tā-ble, bot'ā-ny, sal'ā-ry, vīl'ā, so'fā, etc., the sound may be regarded as a brief and obscure form of ā.

§ 7. In final or medial syllables, unaccented, and closed by n, l, nt, ncc, nd, s, as, st, p or ph or ff, m, or d, as in syl'van, va'can-cy, mor'tal, loy'al, va'cant, val'iant, guid'ance, hus'band, bi'as, com'pass, bal'last, break'fast, jāl'ap, ser'aph, mad'am, myr'l-ad, etc., the ITALIC α is used in the spelling for pronunciation. See § 8.

§ 8. Ā, α: as in all, talk, swarm, wa'ter, ap-pell'; otherwise represented in haul, draw, awe; also in ōrb, bōrn, bought, etc.

This is called the "broad sound" of a, and is formed by a depression of the larynx and a consequent retraction of the tongue which enlarges the cavity of the mouth posteriorly.

In the words salt, malt, quarrel, etc., as commonly heard, the sound of a falls between ō in not and α in all (or is α somewhat shortened).

§ 9. Ā, α: as in was, what, wan'der, wā'low, qual'i-ty, etc. The sound is identical with that of ō (ōdd, nōt), and ow in knowl'edge, etc. In the respelling for pronunciation, it will be represented by ō.

E.

§ 10. Ē, ē: as in ēve, mēte, con'crēte, etc.; the name sound, having equivalents as in feet, beam, deceive, people, key, Cæ'sar, ma-chine, field, quay, Phœ'bus, Por'tu-guese, etc. The vowel is called "long e." In the formation of this element, the tongue is raised convexly within the dome of the palate, pressing against its sides, and leaving the smallest possible passage through which a vowel sound is uttered.

§ 11. Ē, ē: in unaccented syllables, as ē-vent', ē-pit'o-mē, crē-ate', dē-lin'ē-ate', so-cl'ē-ty; shorter than accented ē (ēve), verging towards, or sometimes even reaching, i (III).

§ 12. Ē, ē. This, in genuine English words, occurs only with i or y added, so as to make a digraph; as in eight, prig, vein, etc. The sound is identical with ā in āle, and will be indicated by ā in the respelling.

In naturalized and half-naturalized foreign words, as forte, finale, abbé, ballet, consommé, adobe, auto-da-fé, José, and in the interjection eh and in a few other instances, we have this sound of e without the vaniah. In such cases, in the respelling, it is indicated by the symbol ā.

§ 13. Ē, ē: as in ēnd, pēt, tēm, ēr'ror, etc.; otherwise as in feath'er, hell'er, leop'ard, friend, di-ger'e-sis, ae-fen'i-da, bury, guess, a'ny, sail, etc.; called "short e." The syllable is usually closed by a consonant sound.

This is not the short sound of ē in ēve, but the initial or radical sound, somewhat widened, of the diphthongal ā. It is made by arching up the tongue under the hard palate, as in ē, but its place of formation is farther back.

UNACCENTED it occurs, as in ex-cuse', en-large', ēf-face', ēs-tate', ēr-ro'ne-ous, lev'el, in'tel-lect', car'pet; and sometimes it verges to or towards i, as in ro'sēs, hōrs'ēs, fair'ēt, wis'ēt, riv'ēt, end'ēd, wick'ēd, wool'ēn, kitch'ēn.

§ 14. Ē, ē: as in thēre, whēre; also in heir, etc.; only before r; — identical in sound with ā (cāre).

§ 15. Ē, ē: as in fērn, ērr, hēr, ēr'mine, vērge, in-fēr', per-vērt'; otherwise as in āfr, bīrd, earn, mīrth, mīr'tle, guer'don, etc. It occurs when immediately followed by r in a monosyllable or in the same accented syllable; but not when the r precedes a vowel or another r in the following syllable, as in vēr'y, pēr'll, mēr'ry, ēr'ror, hēr'o, pēr'i-od, etc., except that verbs having this sound of the letter almost always retain it when inflected or suffixed; as in con-fēr'ring, de-tēr'ring, con-fēr'rer, re-fēr'ri-ble.

This sound is formed by placing the organs in a position intermediate between that requisite for sounding ā (ārm), and that for sounding ē, thus making (as Smart observes) a compromise between the two. A majority of English-speaking people, however, make no distinction between ē in her, and ā in urn; but as many orthoëpists do make a slight difference, the two markings have been retained in this Dictionary.

§ 16. UNACCENTED ē (before r), — as in ev'ēr, read'ēr, lov'ēr, sev'ēr, sev'ēr-al, pēr-form'ē, rev'ēr-ent, in'fēr-ence, cav'ēr-n, etc., with equivalents in e-liz'ēr, zeph'ēr, ac'tōr, l'ār, etc., — is nearly identical with the accented ē (ērm).

§ 17. The e before n in unaccented syllables, — as in pru'dent, ra'ment, con-ven'ient, cre'dence, de'cen-ey, etc., — takes a sound of obscure quality in ordinary speech. The e before n in woo'len, kitch'en, etc., takes properly the ē (ēnd) sound, which in rapid speech tends toward i (iii). In words like com'ment, con'vent, — correct with ē (ēnd), — we have the final syllable actually under a secondary accent. Before i, the unaccented e is, in some cases, like that above before n; as in nov'el, in'fi-del; while in shriv'el and some others it takes the form explained below (see § 18); — but, in many cases, it is commonly and properly given as ē (ēnd); thus in jevv'el, cru'el, cam'el, gos'pel, fun'nēl, an'gēl, chan'nēl. In some of these, and in other words of the kind, there is considerable diversity of usage as between these sounds.

In the case of words like pru'dent, nov'el (see above in this paragraph), the vowel will be indicated by a bare ITALIC e in the spelling for pronunciation.

§ 18. The unaccented vowel of obscure quality before n or i, is sometimes reduced to the attenuated form called the voice-glide, — as in eat'en, heav'en, o'pen, shriv'el, a'ble, gen'tle, par'ti-cle, ba'sin, cous'in, par'don, sea'son, etc.

Syllables are also made by m with the voice-glide; as in schism (sī'sm), chaism (kā'sm), ma'cro-coasm (-kās'm), etc. Substituting the vowel ū for the voice-glide is not sanctioned.

In this Dictionary, an APOSTROPHE (') is used in the respelling for pronunciation to indicate the vowel elision or the voice-glide; as, par'd'n, a'b'l, etc.

§ 19. The letter e silent. As annexed to a consonant at the end of a syllable, this letter has no sound; but serves commonly, in accented syllables, to indicate the preceding vowel as long; as in cāme, tōne. It also marks the preceding consonant c or g as soft; as in ser'vice, rav'age, vice, o-blige'.

§ 20. The letter e, with consonant value. Like the short i, when e unaccented is closely followed by another vowel, it naturally falls into more or less of a consonant y sound, and the e thus makes with the following vowel an imperfect, or consonantal, diphthong. After t, or d, or g, or s, this y sound often coalesces with the consonant and changes its sound; as in right'eous (rī'chūs); gran'deur (grān'dūr or grān'jur), mi-cæ'ceous (-shūs), o'cean (Ō'shen), and mau'eous (nā'shūs). Even after the sound of the e has changed the preceding consonant, it may still appear, especially when the accent falls upon the following vowel; as in o'ce-an'ic (Ō'shē-ān'ik), mau'eo-ate (nā'shē-āt).

I.

§ 21. I, i: as in Ice, time, sight, child, bind, gī'ant: the name sound of the letter. It is called "long i." Equivalents are vīe, gullie, height, aīale, thy, buy, choir, rye, eye, ay or aye (yes) as sometimes heard. The sound is diphthongal. The main part is the glide between its initial (ī in ārm) and its terminal (i in iii).

§ 22. ī, i: unaccented: as in ī-de'a, bī-ō'og-y, trī-bu'nal, bī-car'bo-nate, dī-am'e-ter. The quality of the sound is subject to variation; the diphthong (i in Ice) being more curtailed as the syllable takes less stress and shorter quantity.

§ 23. ī, i: as in pīque, ma-chīne', in-trī'gue', etc. The sound is the same as that of ē (ēve), by which it is represented in the respelling for pronunciation.

§ 24. ī, i: as in III, pīl, pī'ty, Is'sue, ad-mī't', un-thī', etc. Equivalents are hymn, guī'ce, sieve, breech'es, been, Eng'lish, bus'y, wom'en. This is not the short sound of i in Ice, but the short correlative of ē in ēve. It is called "short i."

UNACCENTED SYLLABLES with this vowel are, in the greater number of cases, closed by a consonant, as in cab'in, ti-lu'ine', in-hab'it. But there are many words in which i ends an unaccented syllable or forms a syllable by itself, as di-vide', vī-t'ble, vī-t'hil'ity.

GUIDE TO PRONUNCIATION.

§ 25. ĭ, ĭ, before r: as in fĭr, bĭrd, vĭr'tue, vĭr'gin, ĭrk'some, etc.: the precise equivalent of ĕ (fĕrm). In some words the sound, before l or n, is reduced to the voice-glide; as in e'vil (e'v'l), ba'sin (ba's'n), etc. See § 18.

§ 26. The letter i, with consonant value. A short i, closely followed by another vowel, often falls into a y sound, and thus produces an impure diphthong, and makes one syllable out of two; as in fĭl'ial, min'ion, gen'ius, etc. A preceding s surd, e soft, or sc, by fusion with the y, takes an ah sound; as in man'sion, con'scious, vĭ'cious; and an s sonant or a x takes a zh sound; as in vĭ'sion, gĭaz'ier, — the i sound being wholly lost. A preceding t does the same, as in na'tion, par'tial, etc.; with the exception that when preceded by a syllable ending in s or x, the ti takes a ch (tah) sound; as in ques'tion, mix'tion, Chris'tian, etc. After g, the i falls out, leaving the g soft; as in re'gion. When d precedes the i, the di in some words becomes, or tends to become, a j (dzh); as oor'dial, lu'dian, etc., are sometimes, and sol'dier is always, pronounced.

O.

§ 27. Ō, Ȯ: as in ŏld, nȮte, bȮne, Ȯ'ver, pro-pȮse, lȮco-mȮtive, etc.; with equivalents as in roam, foe, shoul'der, grow, owe, sew, yeo'man, beau, haut'boy, door. It is the "regular long" sound, and the name sound of the letter.

This vowel takes a distinctly perceptible vaniah in Ȯb (fȮt), or sometimes in Ȯb (fȮd), and is thus diphthongal. In the formation of the radical part, the lips are contracted to a circular opening; and the jaw is less depressed than for g, and more than for Ȯb (fȮd). As in the similar case of Ā (Āle) the vaniah is not universal, yielding more or less to counteracting influences.

Before r in accented syllables, the long o naturally and more properly takes a vaniah in Ȯ (Ȯrn) instead of Ȯb; as in glȮ'ry, Ȯre, door, four.

§ 28. Ō, Ȯ. In unaccented and usually open syllables, in English; as in Ȯ-be'y, tȮ-bac'cȮ, bil'tȮw, bil'tȮws, Ȯ-crāt'ic, pȮ-et'ic, eu'lȮ-gy, a-nat'Ȯ-my, trans'l-tȮ-ry. This sound differs from the Ȯ (Ȯld), not only by absence of the vaniah, but by taking a somewhat wider form.

§ 29. Ō, Ȯ: only before r; as in Ȯrb, lȮrd, Ȯr'der, ab-hȮr', ex-hȮrt', etc.; with equivalents, as in extraor'dinary, georgic, etc.

The most generally approved pronunciation here represented by this symbol is identical with that of Ȯ (Ȯll).

The Ȯ is limited to accented syllables with the r not followed by a vowel or another r in the following syllable of the same word (the case of inflected verbs, as ab-hȮr'ring, and the cognate nouns in -er, as, ab-hȮr'rer, excepted); while otherwise the vowel is Ȯ, as in fȮr'eign, tȮr'rid, or Ȯ, as in mȮre, Ȯ'ral.

There are some words in which Ȯ before consonants other than r takes usually and properly a medial sound between Ȯ (Ȯll) and Ȯ; as song, long, soft, cross, gone, off, trough, oit, of'ten, cost, broth, cloth, etc.

In the respelling for pronunciation in the Dictionary, this medial sound is indicated by Ȯ (Ȯdd).

In UNACCENTED SYLLABLES, we sometimes have the Ȯ (Ȯrb); as in mȮr-tal'i-ty, fȮr-get', Ȯr-dain', etc., and in fȮr, nȮr, Ȯr, unaccented as well as accented.

§ 30. Ō, Ȯ: as in nȮt, Ȯdd, etc.; called "short Ȯ;" having Ȯ (in wȮs, etc.) as an equivalent, and also ow in knowl'edge and ou in hough, lough. It is the short correlate of Ȯ (Ȯll).

UNACCENTED SYLLABLES with Ȯ are naturally closed by a consonant; as in cȮn-clude', Ȯc-cur', Ȯp-press', dis-cȮn-tent', rec'Ȯ-lect', re-cȮm-mit'; falling into the neutral sound in very rapid speech. They are rarely final syllables, the Ȯ (sȮn) sound being commonly given in final syllables.

§ 31. Ȯ, Ȯ: as in Ȯp, prȮve, tȮmb, etc.; the same as Ȯb, and represented by Ȯb in the respelling for pronunciation.

§ 32. Ȯ, Ȯ: as in wȮlf, wȮ'man, bȮ'som, etc.; with sound of Ȯb, and represented by Ȯb in the respelling for pronunciation.

§ 33. Ō, Ȯ: as in sȮn, dȮne, Ȯth'er, etc.; doubled in flood, blood, etc.; — the same as Ȯ (Ȯp), or before r as Ȯ (Ȯrn), and in the respelling for pronunciation represented by these symbols in accented syllables.

In UNACCENTED SYLLABLES the Ȯ occurs frequently; as in ac'tȮr, at'Ȯm, wel'cȮme, fel'Ȯn, bish'Ȯp, big'Ȯt, etc., with sound either as Ȯ (Ȯp) or as Ȯ (ev'Ȯr). In the respelling for pronunciation, it will appear before r as Ȯ, and in most other cases as Ȯ; but sometimes before n it represents merely a voice-glide; as beck'Ȯn, (bȮk'n), rea'sȮn (rȮ's'n).

Oo.

§ 34. The double letter oo has two sounds, marked ōō and ōb; besides the oo in door, and in flood, etc. In uttering these sounds the labial opening is still more contracted than for ū.

§ 35. ōō, ōb: as in mōon, fōod, fōol, bōot, etc.; with equivalents in dog, canoe, group, ryde, rue, recruit, rheum, drew, manœuvre.

§ 36. ōō, ōb: as in fōot, wōol, gōod, crōok'ed, etc. Equivalents are o (wolf) and u (full). It is the wide or short correspondent of the long oo.

Oī and Oy.

§ 37. The diphthong oi and oy is made by the rapid change or glide of the organs in passing from g to i, as in oil, boy, etc.

Ou and Ow.

§ 38. The diphthong ou and ow is formed by a rapid passage of the organs from ū to ōb, as in outran, owl, outlive, etc. Making the first element ū is a local peculiarity, and is very objectionable.

As digraphs, these combinations of letters take several other sounds; as in soup, route, Zouave (rwāv or sōv-āv), soul, coun'ple, griev'ous, know, hī'low, knowl'edge, cham'ois, av'oir-du-pois, choir, tor'toise, etc.

U.

§ 39. ū, ū: as in ūse, a-būse', fū'sion, pūre, mūte, cūbe, tūne, dū'ty, lūte, jū'ry, etc.; called "long u;" having equivalents as in beauty, feodal, seud, pew, cwe, lieu, view, cue, suit, yule, yew, you.

The general type of the sound is that of a diphthong, which has ōō (fōōd) for the terminal and main part, and for the initial a very brief and evanescent element, nearly related to i (III) or to ē (ēve); but in the greater number of cases there comes in, as a glide, a more or less full sound of consonant y, which displaces the initial vowel element. When preceded by certain consonants, the y glide has a tendency to be fused with the consonant, thus taking the shape of a sibilant, sh or zh, glide (see below). This tendency, in accented syllables, — to which the ū is limited, — should be severely restricted. Also, in no case whatever should the y sound be forced in when it will not come in smoothly as a glide.

At the beginning of a syllable, as in ūse, ū'nit, etc., the initial vowel element becomes y, — the ū here sounding the same as you in the words you, youth, etc. Next to this, the y sound comes in the most clearly after p, b, m, v, f, c, and g hard; as in pūre, bū'reau, beau'ty, mūte, view, fū'tile, cūbe, gūle. After n, it is less prominent; as in new. After s, th, l, and j, the y sound comes in with difficulty, and need not be attempted; as in sūit, as-sūme', thew, en-thū'si-asm, lūte, jū'ry. After t or d, the ū may better be given without the y; as in tūne, tū'tor, due, dūke, dū'ty. In all these cases of y omitted, the initial vowel element (a brief form of i) is retained: it would be quite wrong to give an ordinary ōō for the entire sound in such words. The y, if attempted after t or d, is apt to degenerate into a sibilant, and produce, with the consonant, a decided tsh or dzh sound, thus making tune choon, and due the same as Jew. The y sound after d or m is common in England, as in due, new, etc., but not in America. As exceptional, the s in sure, sug'ar, and their derivatives, is entirely displaced by the sh developed from the y sound, and the vowel is reduced to a simple ōō (fōōd) or ōb (fōōt) sound.

§ 40. ū, ū: representing a modification of the sound of ū (ūse), in unaccented syllables; as in ū-nite', grad'ū-ate, ac'tū-ate, em'ū-late, ū-mul'tū-ous, jū-dī'cial, ad'jū-tant, con'jū-gate, sū-preme', in'sū-lar, ū-cid'ī-ty, in-dī-so-lū-ble, val'ū-a-ble, vir'tūe, na'tūre, ver'dūre, cen'sūre, sen'sū-al, is'sū-ing, meas'ūre, etc. The sound differs from that of ū by taking for the final element the wide ōō (fōōt); and, after t, by a partial or entire change of the y into a more or less clear sh, and usually after d into a zh glide; as in na'tūre, ver'dūre, etc. A preceding s, in a syllable not initial (as in cen'sūre, sen'sū-al, etc.), takes more commonly an sh sound, and a x or an s sonant (as in az'ūre, se'sūre, lei'sūre, cas'ū-al, etc.) takes a sh sound, and the vowel becomes nearly, if not quite, the same in sound as ū (joy'fūl). But the preceding s remains unchanged in initial, and sometimes also in medial syllables; as in sū-preme', con'sū-lar, in'sū-lar, etc. After j or l in the same syllable, the vowel has nearly or exactly the sound of ū (joy'fūl); as in jū-dī'cial, ad'jū-tant, ū-cid'ī-ty, in-dī-so-lū-ble. Before x, the sound often inclines towards ē (ev'ēr); as in na'tūre, cen'sūre, meas'ūre, etc.

§ 41. Ū, ū: only after r; as in ryde, ry'mor, ry'ral. The sound does not differ essentially from that of ō (fōd). The sound occurs after s, as exceptional, in sure and its derivatives, the s being heard as sh.

§ 42. Ū, ū: as in hull, full, pūt, puah, pull, etc.; with sound the same as ō (fōt), heard also in sug'ar after s as sh.

UNACCENTED the u occurs in the syllable ful; as in joy'ful, joy'ful-ness, ful-fill, etc.; also, after r, in frp-gal'i-ty and a few other words.

§ 43. Ū, ū: as in ŭrn, ŭrge, bŭrn, hŭrl, etc.; with equivalents as in worm, journal, etc., before r only. The sound, as more commonly heard, is the narrow form of the vowel, corresponding to the wide ū (ŭp).

§ 44. Ū, ū: as in ŭp, bŭd, tŭb, ŭs, ŭsh'er, ŭn'der, etc.; the "short u;" with equivalents as in rŭn, does, blood, touch, etc.

In UNACCENTED SYLLABLES the vowel occurs in cir'eŭs, sŭb-mit', etc., and falls readily into the "neutral vowel." The ou in pl'ous, etc., oi in por'poise, eo in dun'geon, etc., usually the ow in *bel'low*s, etc., and the final element of the eon in right'eous, etc., and of iou in gra'ci'ous, etc., and the o in at'om, irk'some, na'tion, etc., have the same sound.

§ 45. U, with consonant value, having the sound of w, before another vowel in the same syllable: after q or g; as in qual'ity, quite, ques'tion, gun'no, lan'guage, etc.; also after s, as in persuade', suite, etc.

§ 46. The neutral vowel, sometimes called the "natural vowel," is the vocal sound made with the least articulative effort, or with no effort to shape the sound, and heard, except as a glide, only in unaccented syllables. It may be described as an obscure sound approaching that of ū (up) or ū (urn).

Y.

§ 47. This letter, as a vowel, has four sounds: ȳ = i; as in de-fȳ', atȳle, ſȳ; — ȳ, the equivalent of i (idea); as in hȳ'e-na, mȳ'-ol'o-gy; — ȳ = i; as in nȳm'ph, lȳr'ic, and (unaccented) pit'ȳ, hap'pȳ; — ȳ = e or i; as in mȳrr'h, mȳr'tle and (unaccented) zeph'ȳr.

DIPHTHONGS.

The compound ou is a glide from ā to ō.

The compound i is a glide from ā to i.

The compound ū is composed of y or i and ō.

The sound of ā has a vanish in i or ē.

The sound of ō has a vanish in ō or ō.

THE CONSONANTS OF THE ALPHABET (WITH THE CONSONANT DIGRAPHS) IN DETAIL.

B.

§ 48. This is a labial sonant, correlative of p, as in boy, cab, ebb, beau'ty, bring, blow, a'ble, herb, bulb, robbed (rōbd), etc. It is usually silent after m in the same syllable; as in bomb, climb, tomb; also before t; as in debt, doubt, sub'tle; also in bde'l'ium.

C.

§ 49. The "soft c" has a sibilant sound of three varieties: — One like s sharp, marked Ç, ç, and represented by s in the respelling for pronunciation. C has this sound before e, i, or y; as in cede, civil, cypress, acid, glance, force, vice, etc. — In a few words the letter has the z sound; as in sacrifice, suffice, discern. — When ce or ci is followed by another vowel in the same syllable, the sh sound is taken, either by the c alone, as in oceanic, vicissitude, or by the ce or ci together, as in ocean, vicious, etc.

§ 50. The "hard c," marked C, c, has the sound of k, and is represented by k in the respelling. The letter has this sound before a, o, or u, or a consonant, and at the end of a syllable if not followed by i or e; as in call, cold, picture, act, ethics; and before e in septic, and i in scirrous, etc.

§ 51. C is silent in czar, victuals, indict, and in muscle, corpuscle, etc.

CH.

§ 52. The digraph ch (unmarked) has nearly the sound of tsh; as in chin, church. It is the surd correlative of j.

The sound is also represented by ti in bastion, question, Christian, etc., by te in righteous, and by t in the initial part of texture, nature, etc.

§ 53. The digraph marked Çh, çh, has the sound of sh, in words from the French which have retained this sound; as in chaise, chivalry, chagrin, machine, mustache.

§ 54. Ch hard, marked Ch, ch; with sound like k, which is used to represent it in the respelling. It has this sound in words derived from the Greek, and through the Latin in all but quite modern words; as in chorus, epoch, echo, chlorine, chiasm, character; or from the Hebrew; as in Nebuchadnezzar, Enoch, etc.; exceptions are church, chart, Rachel, cherub, and the prefix arch- in archbishop, archdeacon, archduke, etc.; but the k sound remains in archangel, and in architect, architrave, etc.

§ 55. Ch is silent in drachm, schism, yacht; also in fuchsia.

D.

§ 56. This is a dental sonant, correlative of the surd t; as in day, dry, bed, aimed, idle. It sounds as t when preceded by a surd in the same syllable; as in hissed, looked, arched (hîst, lôôkt, krot). It is silent in the first syllable of Wednesday and in handkerchief, handsome, and windrow.

F.

§ 57. This is a labiodental, the surd correlative of the sonant v; as in fame, fly, few, staff, oft, etc. It has gh and ph for equivalents; as in laugh, photograph, etc. It takes the sound of v in the word of, and usually in the compounds, hereof, thereof, whereof.

G.

§ 58. The "hard g" is marked Ĝ, ĝ; but in the respelling for pronunciation is represented by g unmarked. It is a guttural sonant, the correlative of k, used before a, o, u, or i, r, s, in the same syllable; as in gay, go, gun, glad, grow, lingual, argue, hags, haggie; — sometimes, though not usually, before e, i, or y; as in get, give, gig, muggy. The letter g is always hard at the end of a word; as in hug, berg; also in the derivatives of such words, even when the doubled g is followed by e, i, or y; as in cragged, druggist, foggy.

The interposition of a slight sound of ð (ðve) or I (Il) between g hard and a following ð or I sound, in garden, guard, guide, guile, etc., and in like manner after a k or hard c, in card, kind, etc., — upheld by the authority of Walker, — is not approved.

§ 59. The "soft g," marked Ġ, ġ, has the sound of j, and is represented by j in the respelling for pronunciation; as in gem, engine, rage, caged, etc. It is found usually before e, i, or y.

GUIDE TO PRONUNCIATION.

§ 60. In a few words from the French, the letter g retains the sound like that of z in asure; as in rouge, mirage, cortège, etc.

§ 61. The letter g is silent before m or n final, and when initial before n; as in phlegm, sign, gnat, guéste, etc. No g sound is heard in the digraph ng; as in sing, long, etc.; nor in seraglio, nor in bagaglio.

GH.

§ 62. At the beginning of a word, this digraph is sounded like hard g; as in ghastly, ghost, etc. It is silent after i; as in high, sigh, weigh, straight, eight, right, etc.; also before t in the same or a following syllable; as in bought, brought, thought, wrought, caught, taught, fraught, daughter, drought, etc.; but has the sound of f in the word draught; the sound of f also commonly after au or ou at the end of a syllable; as in laugh, cough, rough, enough; that of k in hough, lough, though; and is often silent after au or ou in the same syllable; as in overallough, dough, doughy, though, bough, through.

H.

§ 63. This is a pure breath sound, representing no fixed configuration of the vocal organs, and is often called the aspirate. It occurs at the beginning of words or syllables, as in hate, here, hire, house, home, hard, hit, hoop, hoot, etc. The sound may be produced before any of the vowel sounds and before the semivowel sounds y and w. It is represented by wh in who, whose, whom. H is silent in heir, herb (usually), honest, honor, hour, and their derivatives.

J.

§ 64. This, with the equivalents g soft and dg, is compounded of d and zh. We have it in jar, jam, jest, jut, jury, join, etc. It is the sonant correlative of the surd ch. In some proper names of foreign origin, and in other foreign words, j or dj occurs at the end of a syllable; as in Aj'a-lon, hadj, hadj'i, Mij'a-min, Raj, Raj'poor'.

The sound is represented by ge in surgeon, outrageous, etc.; by gi in region, religious, etc.; by di in soldier, etc.; by de in grandeur, etc.; and by d with a part of u in verdure.

K.

§ 65. This is a guttural surd mute, the correlative of sonant g (hard); as in kite, kill, skill, sak, ark, elk, ilk, mink, oak, etc. It has hard c, hard ch, gh, cu, qu, que, equ, and q for equivalents; as in call, chorus, hough, biscuit (-kft), coquet, antique, sauque, queen. The sound is the first component of the ordinary x; as in box, etc. Before m, in the same syllable, k is silent; as in knot, knee, etc.; ck has the sound of k alone; as in back; as does lk after g (gall) or ð (ðild); as in walk, folk, etc.

L.

§ 66. This is a palatal sonant made by contact of the point of the tongue with the palate, as for t, d, n; but with the sides of the tongue in this case left free for the passage of the breath. It is one of the liquids. We have it in lie, all, sole. The l in an unaccented following an accented syllable fulfills the office of a vowel; as in batlle, bustle, bridle, couple, pickle, etc., and in some other cases, as in evil, casel, etc. The l is silent in would, could, should, alms, balm, malmsey, calm, palm, palmer, psalm, salmon, almond, half, behalf, calf, halve, salve, calves, balk, chalk, calk, talk, stalk, walk, folk, yolk (often), with like words and their derivatives.

M.

§ 67. M has but one sound, produced by closing the lips, as for b and p, and letting the vocalised breath into the nasal passage; as in me, tame, times. At the beginning of a word, m before n is silent; as in mnemonics.

N.

§ 68. N, as in none, inn, one, ten, fern, sown, tent, annul, change, ingress, congressive, etc., is the dentonasal consonant; the oral passage being closed by contact of the point and the sides of the tongue with the palate, just as it is for t and d, — n being continuous and nasal, while t and d are momentary and oral.

§ 69. When n is final after m it is silent; as in hymn, condemn, solemn, etc.; but when to such words is added a suffix or an inflection beginning with a vowel, the n is generally sounded; as in condemnation, condemnatory, solemnize, solemnity, hymnology, hymnist, limner, autumnal, etc. N is silent in kiln, limekiln, etc. In the participles damned, damning, condemning, contemning, hymning, limning, etc., and also in the cognate nouns condemner and contemner, usage is divided. Initial kn, pn, mn, are sounded as n; as in know, pneumatics, mnemonics, etc.

§ 70. N at the close of an accented syllable, with g, c, or ch, hard, or k or qu, commencing a following syllable, commonly takes the ng sound, and is marked ng; as in an'ger, un'cle, din'gle, an'chor, con'gress, con'gre-ga'tion, can'ker, con'quest, con'quer, etc.; but not generally if the accent falls on the latter syllable; as in con-gres'sive, con-cor'dant, etc.; nor in the prefixes in-, en-, on-, un-, non-; as, in'come, un'-con-cern', non'com-mit'tal; nor in quin'cunx, and the derivatives and compounds of quin'que, nor in pen'guin and a few other words. In e'lon-ga'tion, pro'lon-ga'tion, sag-guif'er-ous, etc., and often in con-gres'sion-al, con-gru'i-ty, and like words, the n, though unaccented, retains the sound of ng, which is given it by rule in the words from which these are derived, as e'lon'gate, etc. It takes the ng sound also before k, or ch hard, or x, at the end of a syllable; as in ink, think, thank, monk, couch, anxious, etc.

NG.

§ 71. The digraph ng is the equivalent of gn. This sound is formed with the organs in the same position as g (hard), except that the nasal passage through which the sound passes is left open. The digraph occurs only at the end of syllables; as in long, wing, hang, sing, song'stress; or with ue added at the end; as in tongue; except that in the comparatives and superlatives of long, strong, young, the g goes with a proper hard g sound to the inflection, while the n takes to itself the ng sound; as, long'er, long'est. In diphthongs and triphthongs the g goes, in a like way, to the suffix -al.

P.

§ 72. This is the surd correlative of b; as in pea, cup, pray, play, harp, spy, spread, oppress, etc. It is silent as initial before n, s, sh, and t; as in pneumatics, psalm, pshaw; also in raspberry, receipt, semptress, account, corps, and their derivatives.

PH.

§ 73. This digraph occurs chiefly in words of Greek derivation, and has usually the sound of f; as in phantom, sylyph, philosophy, etc. It has the sound of v in Stephen; and, according to most orthoëpists, in nephew, though in America it has commonly its regular sound of f in the latter word. In diphthongs, triphthongs, ophthalmy, naphtha, and other allied words, and their derivatives, the ph is sometimes sounded as p.

Q.

§ 74. Q is in all cases followed by u, and the two together have commonly the sound of kw; as in queen, conquest, etc.; but they have that of k in a few words from the French, as in coquette, etc.; as has also the ending -que in antique, burlesque, etc.

R.

§ 75. The sound of r, as in rip, trip, carol, far, form, etc., is produced by the passage of the voice over the tongue, the end of which is raised, but does not touch the roof of the mouth, while its sides close the passages through which the sound of l passes.

There are two leading varieties of the consonant r. One, the dental r, is made between the point of the tongue and hard palate not far back of the teeth; used before a vowel, as in rise, try, oral, array. This, as requiring a more forcible expulsion of the breath, is commonly called "rough" r. The other, the palatal r, is made between the tongue and the palate, somewhat farther back, with less friction of breath than the dental, and hence is commonly called "smooth" r. It occurs at the end of a syllable or before a consonant, as in far, arm, orbit.

The "rough" r is by some speakers more or less trilled, but this practice is not common in the United States.

A prevailing fault in New England is (like that which Walker says prevailed in England, especially in London) not sounding the r at the end of words and before a consonant; thus, ch (with the vowel somewhat prolonged) for car, f for far, etc. It still prevails in the south of England. In the United States, the fault is not uncommon in New England. But among educated people the r takes generally in the United States a more or less clear sound as a consonant in all situations.

The letter r never takes the regular short sound of a vowel before it, except when in primitives and their derivatives it ends a syllable, and is followed by a syllable beginning with a vowel sound; as in marry, very, spirit, mirror, florid, morrow, hurry, myriads. The doubling of the r does not affect this statement, since but one r is sounded.

When primitives end in r their derivatives do not take the regular short sound of a vowel similarly situated; as in bar, barring; infer, inferring; err, erring; stir, stirring; abhor, abhorring; occur, occurring.

S.

§ 73. The proper sound of s as a surd is made by breath forced through a contracted channel between the tongue and the hard palate near the front teeth, and impinging upon the edges of the upper or the lower teeth; as in see, so, hiss, yes, scorn, sky, aly, smile, snow, spy, square, stay, swim, cuffs, picks, cups, cuts, sense, curse, best, message, display, lisp, gypsy, absurd, etc. Equivalents are: c soft, as in cell, civil, vice; sc, as in scene, science, etc.; sch as in schism.

§ 77. The sonant s (marked g), corresponding to the surd, as above, is made with the same articulative position, except that the tongue is pressed somewhat closer to the palate. The sound is precisely like that of z; as in fig, hag, etc. The s is sonant as the final sound of some verbs and surd as the final sound of the cognate nouns or adjectives; as use, abuse, diffuse, house, etc. Notice close, with s as z in verb and noun, and s sharp in the adjective. Compare advise (v.), advice (n.), etc.

§ 78. S takes sometimes the sound of sh, by fusion with a following y sound, with consequent vowel change; as in version, mansion, convulsion, censure, sensual, sure, sugar, etc.; in the case of s doubled, the first is assimilated to the second; as in passion (piash'ün), issue (ish'ü or ish'y). In a few words s takes the sh sound while leaving the following vowel unchanged; as in Asiatic, nausea, etc. Compare § 49.

§ 79. S takes the sound (zh) of z in azure by fusion with a following y sound, when it is preceded by a vowel in an accented syllable; as in vi'gion, de-ci'gion, ad-he'gion, sun'gion, ex-ple'gion, con-fu'gion, pleas'ure, lei'gure, vig'u-al, u'gu-ry, etc.; also in sci'gion, ab-sci'gion, re-sci'gion.

SH.

§ 80. This digraph, as in sharp, shme, raah, usher, represents a surd sibilant made between tongue and palate at a place farther back than the s. It is reckoned as a simple element, and is the correlate of the sonant sound represented by zh.

The sound is otherwise represented by c or s with or before e or i, and by t or sc with or before i; by a, sometimes, before u; as involved in the x in anxious, luxury, etc.; by ch in chaise, machine, etc.; by chs in fuchsia; and by sch in schorl, schottische, from the German.

T.

§ 81. This is the dental surd correlative of sonant d; as in tie, it, note, try, tune, twine, stay, stray, art, last, apt, sent, aft, act, salt, next, attend, etc.

TH.

§ 82. This digraph is used to represent two sounds, a surd and a sonant, both made with the same articulative position: the surd, as in thin, thing, thrive, enthusiasm, breath, length, birth, width, etc.; the sonant, marked Fh, th, as in the, this, thy, then, with, breathe, bathe, father, northern, etc.

In the following nouns the th is surd in the singular and sonant in the plural: bath, cloth, lath, mouth, oath, path, wreath, moth; pl. bathg, clothg, etc. Verb and noun forms differ: the verb sonant, the noun surd; as, breathe, breath; wreathe, wreath; bathe, bath; mouth, mouth.

§ 83. Th has the sound of t in thyme, Thomas, Thames, Esther; and in phthisic, (ph being silent). It is commonly silent in isthmus and asthma.

V.

§ 84. This is the sonant correlative of the surd f; as in vain, vivid, ever, live, lived, move, moves, calves, wolves, etc. The sound is taken by f in of; but in pronouncing its compounds, hereof, thereof, etc., usage is divided between v and f.

W.

§ 85. At the beginning of a word or of a syllable, as wet, worse, inward, this letter (which is unmarked) is a sonant, formed from, and nearly resembling, the vowel oo, but requiring for its utterance a closer position, or greater contraction, of the labial aperture; and this compression of the lips changes the quality of the sound, giving it a buzzing and articulative instead of a smooth and purely vocal character.

It is often represented by u occurring before another vowel in the same syllable, as in quail, query, languid, assuage, etc.

§ 86. After a vowel in the same syllable, w is generally silent; as in glow, thrown, etc., though sometimes significant, as in flaw. With e it unites to form a diphthong, which is generally sounded like long u, as in dew, few, new; but it is sounded like oo, or like u in rude, if the letter r stands before it, as in crew, shrew. It is often joined with a preceding o to represent the diphthongal sound otherwise expressed by ou, as in brow, town.

§ 87. W is always silent before r in the same syllable, as in wring, wrote, awry; also in the words answer, sword, toward, two.

WH.

§ 88. The true sound of these letters is in the reverse order, namely, hw, as they were written in Anglo-Saxon; e. g., when is pronounced hwen; wharf, hwarf. The h is here a free emission of breath through the position taken by the lips in the formation of w. In who, whole, whoop, whore, and their derivatives, the w is silent.

X.

§ 89. The surd sound of x, as in box, wax, execute, exit, exodus, exudation, exclaim, extreme, excel, excellent, etc., is equivalent to that of ks. X, as preceding an accented syllable, is exceptionally surd (ks) in ex-ar'chate, ex-er'cent, ex-ude', hex-am'e-ter, ex-al'le, and a few other words (see § 90). In words such as anxious, noxious, luxury, the s component of the x becomes sh by fusion with a following y sound.

§ 90. X is, with few exceptions, sonant (gx) when followed by an accented syllable that begins with a vowel, or by a silent h and a vowel under the accent; as in exist, exalt, exaggerate, example, exempt, exert, exotic, exult, exhaust, exhibit, exhort, exhilarate, etc. Some derivatives of such words often retain the sound with the x falling under the accent; as in ex'em-pla-ry, ex'emp-ti'tious.

§ 91. At the beginning of words, x has the sound of z; as in xanthic, xebec, xylography. It retains this sound in certain compounds, as in par'a-xan'thin, met'a-xy'lene, etc.

§ 92. Y, as a consonant, is a palatal sonant; as in year, you, young, beyond, vineyard, halyard, etc. It is classed with w as a semivowel. In certain cases the sound is represented by i; as in poniard, onion, genial, familiar, etc.; and in like manner by e, and it forms a part of the vowel ti (*fi*se). The place of articulation for this consonant extends farther back than the place of constriction for the vowel ē (*ē*ve), involving the soft palate, as the place for ē does not.

Y, as a consonant, occurs only at the beginning of a syllable; at the end or in the middle, it is a vowel, as in my, happy, eye. It is used in this Dictionary in giving the pronunciation of some foreign words, as fiord, lorgnette, camarilla, etc.; and, in such case, is not restricted to the beginning of a syllable.

Z.

§ 93. The ordinary z is a sonant; as in zeal, zone, maze, size, amazed, frozen, hazy, dizzy, sizar, buzz, etc.; the sound is often represented by s; as in easy, his, ears, etc.; sometimes by c; as in suffice, etc. It is the correlative of the surd s.

§ 94. In some words, z takes a sound (zh) which is the sonant correlative of the surd sh; as in azure, seizure, grazier. The sound is represented by sl in fusion, etc.; by ti, exceptionally, in transition (cf. in-sition); and by g in rouge, manège, mirage, and other words from the French.

ASSIMILATION OF SOUNDS.

When a surd and a sonant consonant come together in the same syllable, it is generally very difficult, in fluent pronunciation, to preserve each in its regular and appropriate sound. Hence it frequently becomes necessary to change the character of the one or of the other, in order to make the combination readily pronounceable. This is generally done, in English, by assimilating the sound of the second consonant, whether surd or sonant, to that of the first. Thus, in chintz, the vocal consonant z assumes the sound of its surd correspondent s, in order to unite with the surd t. On the other hand, the s in winds is vocalized, or assumes the sound of z, for the sake of corresponding with the sonant d. Sometimes, though rarely, the sound of the first consonant is assimilated to that of the second, as in spasm (spas'm), prism (pris'm).

This affinity between these two classes of consonants is an important fact, and one which needs to be familiarly known. For there are four very common inflectional terminations which come under its influence, namely: 1. Possessive forms in s, as maid's (maids); 2. Plurals in s, as tubs (tubs), groves (groves); 3. s in the third person singular of verbs, as loads (loads), smooths (smooths); 4. Preterites and participles in d preceded by s mute, as in dash'd (dash't), ingulf'd (ingulf't).

DUPLICATION OF CONSONANTS.

In many words, a consonant is doubled between two vowels; yet, in such cases, no more than one articulation is used in speaking. In banner, for example, we close the organs but once between the first and second syllables; nor is it possible to use both of the letters n without pronouncing ban, then intermitting the voice entirely, opening the organs, and closing them a second time. Hence, in all cases, when the same consonant is written twice between vowels, as in banner, robbing, madden, letter, horrid, one of them only is represented by an articulation of the organs; and the only reason for repeating the consonant is to indicate the fact that the preceding vowel has its short sound.

But although only one articulation is ever used where a consonant is written twice, yet in some words the articulation is dwelt upon for an appreciable space of time, producing an apparent duplication of the sound. This effect takes place in many derived words, in which the primitive ends or begins with the same letter as that with which a superadded suffix and prefix of English origin respectively begins or ends, as in soulless, foully, keenness, miststep, outtravel, unnatural. The same effect takes place in most compound words, in which the second part begins with the same sound as that with which the first part ends, as in post-town, headdress, half-filled.

ACCENT.

Accent is a particular stress or effort of voice upon certain syllables of words, which distinguishes them from the others by a greater distinctness and loudness of pronunciation. Accent is of two kinds, primary, as in in-tend', where the full force of the voice is on the last syllable, and secondary, as in su'per-in-tend', where the first syllable is distinguished by a stress greater than that laid on the second and third syllables.

though less than that laid on the last. In some words there are two secondary or subordinate accents, as in in-com'pre-hen'si-bil'i-ty.

NOTE. — (1.) The general tendency of accent, whether primary or secondary, is to shorten all vowels but u, when further back than the penultimate syllable, as in ten'e-ment, neq'essariness, an'atom'ical, person'ifica-tion, etc. (though we say lub'ricate, and not lūb'ricate; try'culency, and not trūc'ulency; sū'perabun'dant, and not sūp'erabun'dant, etc.). This tendency generally fails, if the first of the two following syllables ends, and the second begins, with a vowel; as in pe'ri-od, o'ri-en'tal, le-vi'a-than.

(2) The primary and secondary accents are, in certain cases, so nearly equal that we interchange them freely, "making," as Walker remarks, "the secondary accent principal and the principal secondary." Examples are am-buscade, cavalcade, caricature, etiquette, reverie, confidante, governante, parachute, etc.

(3) Many in America give a marked secondary accent in certain words which properly have but one accent, and that on a pre-antepenultimate syllable, as in ter'ri-tō'ry, dif'f-ūl'ty, cir'cum-stān'ces, in'ter-est'ing, etc. This droning fault may be corrected by giving the accented syllable a sharp percussion, which carries the voice lightly through the rest of the word.

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES.

PREFIXES.

A- 1. [AS. on.] On; in;—forming adjectives denoting a state or adverbs of manner; as, afloat, asleep, aground. 2. [AS. of.] Off; from; as, adown. 3. [AS. ð; akin to Goth. us, ur, G. er.] Away; on; back;—often intensive; as, arise, ago, abide. 4. [OE. y-or u, AS. ge; akin to OHG. ga, gi.] A prefix making little change in the meaning, as in aware. 5. [F. à, fr. L. ad to.] A form of Ad; as, abase, achieve. 6. [L. a, ab, abs.] From; as, avert. 7. [Gr. ἀ, privative.] Without; not;—akin to E. un, not; as, abyas, atheist.
Ab- [L. ab, same as E. of, off.] From; away; separation; departure; as, abstract, abduct.
Ab- A form of Ab.
Ad- A form of Ad.
Ad- [L. ad, prep.] To; towards; at; near;—written ac, af, ag, al, an, ap, ar, as, at, the d being assimilated to the first letter of the word to which it is prefixed, but remaining unchanged before vowels, and before d, h, m, v; as, adduce, accord, affect, aggregate, allude, annex, appear, etc. It becomes ac before gu, and a in many words from OF; as, acquiesce, avow.
Adeno-, Aden- [Gr. ἀδην, ἀδένος, gland.] Combining forms of the Greek word for gland; as, adenology.
Aëro- [Gr. ἀήρ, ἀέρος, air.] Combining form of the Greek word for air; as, aërolite, atrophyte.
Afore- [a- + fore; AS. onforan or selforan.] Before; previously; as, aforemid.
Al-, Ag- Forms of Al-.
Al- 1. [AS. cal.] All; wholly; completely; as, almighty, almost. 2. A form of Ad. 3. The Arabic definite article = E. the; as, alchemy, alcoran.
Amb-, Amb- [L. amb, akin to Gr. ἀμφί, AS. embe, G. um, also to L. ambo both.] About; around; on both sides; as, ambidexter, ambient.
Amph-, Amph- [Gr. ἀμφί.] Both; of both kinds; on both sides; about; around; as, amphibious.
An- [Gr. ἀν; akin to E. un.] Without; not; as, anæsthesia.
Ana- [Gr. ἀνά on; in comp., on, up, upwards.] Up; upward; throughout; backward; back; again; anew; as, anapest, anachronism.
Angio- [Gr. ἀγγίον vessel, receptacle.] Combining form indicating relation to seed or vessels of plants or to blood vessels, lymph vessels, etc., in animals; as, angioperm.
Anglo- [NL. Anglus English.] English; English and; English conjoined with; as, Anglo-Saxon.
Ant- A form of Anti-.
Ante- [L. ante; akin to Gr. ἀντί, AS. and, ond, G. ant, ent.] Before; fore; in front; as, antecedent.
Anti-, Ant- [Gr. ἀντί against.] Against; opposite; opposed to; contrary; in place of; as, antislavery, antithesis, antifretic.
Apo- [Gr. ἀπό.] From; away from; off; asunder; separate; as, apocope, apostle.
Arch-, Arch- [L. arch, archi, Gr. ἀρχι; fr. root of ἀρχαίω to be first, begin, ἀρχή the first place, beginning.] Chief; head; primitive; original; as, archdeacon, architect.

As- A form of Ad.
Astro- [Gr. ἀστρον star.] Combining form from the Greek word for star; as, astronomy.
At- A form of Ad.
Auto- [Gr. αὐτός self.] Self; one's self; one's own; itself; its own; as, autograph.
Azo- [Abbr. of azole.] Containing nitrogen variously combined;—a chemical term; as, azobenzene (a substance furnishing a dye).
Bas- [Gr. βάσις step, base.] Combining form indicating the base, or position at or near the base, or forming a base,—used esp. in botanical and anatomical words; as, basiscranial (situated at the base of the cranium).
Be- [AS. be, orig. same as bi by; akin to G. be, bei, and perh. Gr. ἐμφί about.] Orig. same as by. Joined with verbs, it serves: (a) To intensify the meaning; as, bespatter, bestir. (b) To render an intransitive verb transitive; as, besall, bespeak. (c) To make the action of a verb particular or definite; as, beget (to get au offspring), beset (to set around).
 It is joined with some substantives, and a few adjectives, to form verbs; as, bedew, besfriend, belate. It occurs with certain nouns, adverbs, and prepositions, with the force of by or about; as, belief, behal, beneath, beside. In some words the original force of be- is obscured or lost; as, become, begin, behave.
Bi- [L. bi, bis, twice; akin to E. two; cf. Dr., Duo.] 1. Two; twice; doubly;—esp. common in scientific words; as, bicycle, bilateral. 2. In chemical names, bi- denotes two atoms, parts, or equivalents of the constituent to whose name it is prefixed, to one of the other compound; or that such constituent is present in double the ordinary proportion; as, bichromate (a salt containing two equivalents of chromic acid). Bi- and Di- are often used interchangeably.
Bin- [L. bin two at a time.] Two; twice; bi-; as, binaural (relating to both ears).
Bis- [L.] Same as Bi-.
Cata-, Cat-, Cath- [Gr. κατά.] Down; downward; under; against; contrary to; opposed to; wholly; completely; as, cataract, catoptrica, catholic.
Cephalo- [Gr. κεφαλή head.] Head; pertaining to, or connected with, the head; as, cephalopoda.
Chloro-, Chlor- Containing chlorine as an ingredient; as, chloroform.
Chondro-, Chondr- [Gr. χόνδρος grain of wheat, cartilage.] Like a grain; granular; cartilaginous; as, chondrostel.
Circum- [L. circum; akin to circus circle.] Around; about; surrounding; as, circumnavigate.
Cis- [L. cis.] On this side of; as, cisalpine.
Co-, Col-, Com- Forms of Com-.
Com- [L., same as cum with.] With; together; in conjunction; against; very. It is written com- before b, m, p, and sometimes f; col- usually before l; cor- before r; co- usually before a vowel or h or tr; and con- usually in other cases; as, combine, comminute, compare, comfort, collect, corrupt, coact, cohabit, co-worker, confer.

Contra- [L. contra.] Against; in opposition; counter to; across; as, contradict.

Con- A form of Con-.

Counter- [F. contre; fr. L. contra.] Against; opposite; answering to; contrary; as, countermand.

Crypto- [Gr. κρυπτός; hidden.] Secret; invisible to the naked eye; indistinctly; as, cryptogram, cryptocystalline (indistinctly crystalline).

Cyclo- [Gr. κύκλος circle, wheel.] Circular; of a circle or wheel; as, cyclometer.

De- [L. de, prep.] Down; from; away; — often with negative force, sometimes intensive; as, defer, deprave. In words from the French it is often equivalent to L. Dis-; as, derange, detach.

Deca-, Deka- [Gr. δέκα ten.] Ten; in the Metric System, designating a weight or measure ten times the principal unit; as, decalogue, decimeter.

Deci- [F. déci; tenth; fr. L. decimus.] One-tenth; in the Metric System, designating a weight or measure one-tenth of the principal unit; as, decimate, deciliter.

Demi- [F.; fr. L. dimidius half.] Half; as, demi-monde. [of Dis-; as, deshable.]

Dis- [F.; fr. L. dis.] Apart; away; not; — a form.

Deuto-, Deut- [Gr. δεύτερος; second.] 1. Second; as, deutoplasm (the second, i. e. albuminous, portion of eggs having both a yolk and albumen). 2. In chemistry, formerly, second in a regular series of chemical compounds; now equivalent to Bi-, Di-.

Dextro- [L. dexter right.] Pertaining to, or toward, the right; in chemistry and optics, turning the plane of polarized light to the right; as, dextrorotary, dextrose.

Di- [Gr. δίς, δύς, twice; akin to duo two, L. bis twice.] Twofold; double; twice; in chemistry, denoting two atoms, radicals, or equivalents; as, dichloram, dibasic.

Dis-, Di- [Gr. διά through.] Through; between; apart; asunder; across; as, diameter, diorama.

Dis- A form of Dis-.

Dis- 1. [L.; fr. same root as bis twice, duo two, E. two.] Apart; asunder; in two; undoing; — often used as a privative and a negative, also as an intensive; as, disrupt, disconnect, disarm. 2. [Gr. δίς.] Same as Di-, twofold.

Geo-, Ge- [Gr. γῆ, γῆ, the earth.] Relating to the earth; as, geography.

Hema-, Hemato-, Hemo-, or Hema-, Hemato-, Hemo- [Gr. αἷμα, αἷμα, blood.] Relating to, or resembling, blood; associated with blood; as, hematoid.

Helio- [Gr. ἥλιος the sun.] Relating to the sun; as, heliotrope, heliotrope. [hemisphere.]

Hemi- [Gr. ἡμι; akin to L. semi.] Half; semi; as,

Hepta- [Gr. ἑπτὰ seven.] Seven; sevenfold; as, heptachord, heptagon.

Hetero- [Gr. ἕτερος other.] Other; other than usual; different; as, heterodox.

Hex-, Hexa- [Gr. ἕξ six.] Six; sixfold; as, hexapod, hexangular.

Holo- [Gr. ὅλος whole.] Whole; complete; entire; as, holograph, holoblast.

Homo- [Gr. ὁμός the same.] One and the same; common; joint; similar; like; as, homogeneous.

Hydro-, Hydro- [Gr. ὕδωρ water; whence E. hydro in hydrogen.] 1. Relating to water; as, hydrogen, hydrography. 2. Obtained by hydrogen; having hydrogen as an ingredient; — a chemical combining form; as, hydrocarbon.

Hydroxy- Having hydroxyl as an ingredient; — a chemical combining form, also sometimes used adjectively; as, hydroxy compounds.

Iryo- Relating to the hyoid bone or arch; — an anatomical prefix; as, hyomandibular.

Hypo- [Gr. ὑπό under; akin to L. sub.] 1. In a lower or inferior position or state; as, hypotenuae, hypotnesia. 2. Having a low chemical valence; in a low state of oxidation; as, hypophosphite, a phosphite containing phosphorus in a low state of oxidation.

Ideo- [Gr. ἰδέα idea.] Relating to ideas, conceptions, representations, etc.; as, ideograph.

Idio- [Gr. ἰδίος proper, peculiar.] Private; personal; peculiar; distinct; as, idiosyncrasy.

Il- A form of Il-.

Ilio- Relating to, or connected with, the ilium; — an anatomical combining form; as, ilio-lumbar.

Im- A form of Im-.

- In- 1. [E. in, prep. and adv., or L. in; both akin to Gr. en in.] In; within; into; on; among; — sometimes used with simple intensive force. In words of Latin origin it regularly becomes in- before f, ir- before r, and im- before a labial, as b, m, p; as, inbred, intrude, inude, irruption, imbue, immigrate, impart, incriminate. 2. [L. in-; akin to E. in-.] Not; contrary to; without; non-; un-; as, inadequate, illogical, irresponsible, immeasurable, improvident; — this suffix changing like the preceding.
- Indo- Pertaining to East India; Indian; as, Indo-European.
- Intra- [L.; akin to E. under.] Below; beneath; under; after; as, intra-maxillary.
- Inter- [L. inter; compar. of in in.] Among; between; amid; as, interfere, interpolate.
- Intra- [L. intra; akin to inter.] Within; on the inside of; interior; as, intramarginal.
- Intro- [L. intro; akin to inter.] Within; into; in; inward; as, introduce, introspection.
- Iodo- [L. iodo; having iodine as an ingredient; — a chemical combining form; as, iodide.
- Is- A form of is-.
- Is- [Gr. isos; equal.] Identical; equal; of the same numerical value; as, isometric.
- Iuxta- [L.] Near; nearly; close; as, juxtaposition.
- Lance- [Gr. leukos; white.] White; colorless; as, leucophyllous (white-leaved).
- Lavo- [L. laevo; toward the left;] Toward the left; in chemistry, referring to the plane of polarized light; as, levorotary (turning this plane to the left).
- Litho- [Gr. lithos; stone.] Pertaining to stone; made of, or on, stone; stony; as, lithograph, lithology.
- Lute- [L. luteus.] Orange yellow; brownish yellow; buff; — a chemical combining form.
- Macro- [Gr. makros.] Long; large; great; as, macrocosm.
- Magneto- Pertaining to, produced by, or connected with, magnetism; as, magnetoelectricity.
- Mal- [F. mal, or L. malus, adv., fr. malus ill, bad.] Ill; evil; bad; badly; as, malediction, malcontent, maladministration.
- Mega- [Gr. megale, gen. megalou, great.] 1. Great; extended; powerful. 2. A million times; a million of; — combining forms in the Metric System, electric science, mechanics, etc.; as, megatherium, megavolt.
- Meso- [Gr. mesos; in the middle.] In the middle; intermediate; as, mesocarp, mesentery.
- Meta- [Gr. meta between, with, after.] 1. Between; with; after; behind; over; about; reversely; as, metamerism, metathesis, metempsychosis. 2. Other; duplicate; corresponding to; resembling; hence, metamerism; — chemical prefix; as, metaldhyde (substance metameric with aldehyde).
- Micro- [Gr. micros small.] 1. Small; little; trivial; slight; as, microscope. 2. A millionth part of; — combining forms in the Metric System, electric science, mechanics, etc.; as, microfarad (one millionth of a farad).
- Milli- [F.; fr. L. mille a thousand.] A thousandth part of; — combining form in the Metric System, etc.; as, millimeter.
- Min- [AS. mis-; akin to G. miss-, and fr. same root as G. meiden to shun. Also OF. mes-, fr. L. minus less. The prefix from the French has been supplanted by the AS. form, which is now the one in use.] Amis; wrong; ill; unsuitable; unlike; as, mistake, mislead, mischievous, microant.
- Mon- [Gr. monos.] One; single; alone; sole; only; as, monotony, monoxide.
- Mult- [L. multus much.] Much; many; several; more than one; as, multiform, multangular.
- Myo- [Gr. mys, mys, a muscle.] Relating to muscles; — an anatomical combining form; as, myography.
- Myria- [Gr. myriads myriad.] Ten thousand; ten thousand times; as, myriadopod.
- Naso- [L. narus nose.] Pertaining to, or connected with, the nose; — anatomical combining form; as, nasolachrymal.
- Neo- [Gr. neos youthful.] New; recent; late; as, neophyte.
- Neuro- [Gr. neuron nerve.] Pertaining to a nerve or to the nervous system; as, neuroptera.
- Nitro- Containing niter or compounds of nitrogen; as, nitrobenzene.
- Non- [L., fr. OL. noncum not one.] Not; un-; in-; as, nonessential, nonconformity.
- Ob- [L. ob.] To; toward; before; against; reversely; — also used intensively. Ob- is commonly assimilated before c, f, g, and p to oc, of, og, and op respectively; as, obtrude, occur, offer, oppose, obverse, obscure.
- Octo- A form of Octa-.
- Octo- [L. octo eight, or the kindred Gr. okta, with combining form okta-; akin to E. eight.] Eight; eighth; as, octopod, octagon.
- Odonto- [Gr. odous, odontos, a tooth.] Pertaining to a tooth or teeth; as, odontology, odontalgia.
- Of- [Gr. of-.] Forms of Of-.
- Oligo- [Gr. oligos.] Few; little; as, oligospermous (few-seeded).
- Omn- [L. omnis.] All; every; everywhere; as, omnipresent, omnipotent.
- Op- A form of Organo-.
- Organo- [Gr. organon organ.] Relating to, or connected with, an organ or organs; as, organography.
- Ornitho- [Gr. ornis, ornithos, a bird.] Pertaining to birds; as, ornithology.
- Ortho- [Gr. orthos straight.] Straight; right; upright; correct; regular; as, orthography.
- Osteo- [Gr. ostion a bone.] Pertaining to, or connected with, bones; as, osteology.
- Oto- [Gr. otus, otitis, the ear.] Pertaining to the ear; in or near the ear; as, otitis.
- Out- [E. out, adv.; fr. AS. ut.] From; beyond; more; not within; as, outside, outside.

Zoö- [Gr. ζῷον an animal.] Relating to animals; as, zoölogy, zoötomy.

SUFFIXES.

NOTE. — In the following list of suffixes there are included many which are now used and considered as such in English, but which historically are the result of older endings not always strictly suffixes, but often containing a part of the stem of a primitive word, and also, sometimes, more than one original suffix.

Some very rare or much altered suffixes and a number of compound suffixes, the meanings of which are readily gathered from the elements of which they are made up, are omitted.

-able, -ible. [F. -able, or L. -abilis; F. -ible, or L. -ibilis.] Capable of being or doing; fit to be; causing; — usually in a passive sense; as, capable, passable, amenable, suitable.

-al. Generally the form -able is affixed to uncorrupted infinitival stems of Latin verbs of the first conjugation (verbs ending in -are), to verbs from the Anglo-Saxon, and to all nouns whatsoever their source; in other cases -ible is used.

-ably, -ibly. Adverbial forms corresponding to -ABLE, -IBLY.

-ac. [Gr. -ακός; often through F. -aque, or L. -acus.] Of or pertaining to; partaking of; one who; as, cardiac, demoniac, elegiac, sodiac.

-aceous. [L. -aceus.] Having; pertaining to; resembling; full of; as, cetaceous, herbaceous, saponaceous, rosaceous.

-acious. [L. -ax, gen. -acis.] Characterized by; showing; indicating; as, mendacious, audacious, capacious.

-acity. [L. -acitas; sometimes through F. -acilé.] A suffix corresponding to -acious, and forming abstract nouns; as, audacity.

-acy. [OF. -acie, or LL. -atia.] State or quality of being; office of; -cy; as, abbacy, primacy, diplomacy, advocacy.

-ad. [Gr. -ᾰδ (nom. -ᾰδς).] 1. Thing that is (single, double, etc.); monad, dyad. 2. Patronymic form equivalent to -id; as, dryad, illad, dunciad.

-age. [F.; fr. L. -aticum.] Collection of; state of being; act of; allowance for; as, savage, umbrage, foliage, homage, damage, breakage.

-al. [F. -al, -el, or L. -alis; sometimes (forming nouns) fr. F. -ille, fr. L. neut. pl. -alia.] Of; pertaining to; befitting; becoming; act of; as, mortal, basal, cordial, annual, eternal, rival, animal, annual.

NOTE.—The foregoing list of Prefixes and Suffixes in connection with the etymologies in the body of the work will enable a learner to become acquainted with the formation of words and the signification of their constituent parts.

To this end it is suggested that the teacher assign a number of prefixes and suffixes as a lesson for study, and that the pupil be required in each case to ascertain and explain the literal meaning of the examples appended to them, including the root and formative syllables, and also to select from the body of the dictionary other examples of the use of the prefixes and of the more common suffixes.

Another method would be to give a list of words for analysis, requiring a careful statement of the meaning of each word, and how this meaning has grown from the root by the influence of prefixes and suffixes.

Other methods of using the table will occur to the thoughtful teacher.

RULES FOR SPELLING CERTAIN CLASSES OF WORDS.

FOUNDED ON THE ORTHOGRAPHY OF DR. WEBSTER
AS EXHIBITED IN THIS VOLUME.

§ 1. The letters f and l, at the end of monosyllables, and standing immediately after single vowels, are generally doubled; as in staff, cliff, doff, puff; all, bell, hill, toll, null. The words clef, if, of, and sol, are exceptions.

§ 2. The letter s, at the end of a monosyllable, and after a single vowel, is generally doubled, except when used to form the possessive case or plural of a noun, or third person singular of a verb; as in grass, press, hiss, moss, truss. The only important exceptions are as, gas, has, was, yes, his, is, thus, and us.

§ 3. Besides f, l, and s, the only consonants doubled at the end of a word are b, d, g, m, n, p, r, t, and z. Words in which these letters are doubled are abb, ebb; add, odd, rudd; egg, mum (to mask); inn, bunn; vapp; gnarr, parr, err, birr, shirr, skirr, burr, purrr; milt, bull; fizz, fuzz, buzz.

§ 4. A consonant standing at the end of a word immediately after a diphthong or double vowel is never doubled. The words ail, peat, haul, door, and main, are examples.

§ 5. Monosyllables ending, as pronounced, with the sound of k, and in which c follows the vowel, have usually k added after the c; as in black, knock, buck. The words lace, sac, talce, zinc, place, rock, soc, arc, mare, orc, and flac, are exceptions.

Words of more than one syllable, ending in ic or iac, which formerly ended in k, also words derived from the Latin or Greek languages, or from other sources, or formed in an analogous manner, are now written without the k; as, maniac, music, public. The word derrick is an exception. Words of more than one syllable, in which c is preceded by other vowels than i or ia, commonly end in ck; as arrack, barrack, hammock, hillock, wedlock. The words almanac, sandarac, limbec, zebec, manioc, and haroc, are exceptions.

§ 6. In derivatives formed from words ending in c, by adding a termination beginning with e, i, or y, the letter k is inserted after the c, in order that the latter may not be inaccurately pronounced like s before the following vowel: as, colic, colicky; traffic, trafficked, trafficking, trafficker; zinc, zinky.

§ 7. In derivatives formed by adding a termination beginning with a vowel to monosyllables and words accented on the last syllable, when these words end in a single consonant (except z) preceded by a single vowel, that consonant is doubled; as, clan, clannish; plan, planned, planning, planner; hot, hotter, hottest; wit, witty; cabal, cabalier; abel, abelled, abelling, abettor; infer, inferred, inferring.

The derivatives of the word gas (except gassed, gasing, and gassy) are written with but one s; as, gaseous, gaseity, gasy. Excellence, as being from the Latin excellens, retains the double l, though one l has been dropped from the termination of excel. It is no exception to this rule that chancellor, and the derivatives of metal and crystal, as metalloid, metallurgy, crystalline, crystallize, and the like, are written with the l doubled, since they are derived respectively from the Latin cellarius (through the French), and metallum, and the Greek κρυσταλλος. So also the word tranquillity retains the double s as being from the Latin tranquillitas, while the English derivatives of tranquil, though often written with two l's, are more properly written with only one, as tranquillize, tranquillizer, and the like.

§ 8. When a diphthong, or a digraph representing a vowel sound, precedes the final consonant of a word, or the accent of a word ending in a single consonant falls on any other syllable than the last, or when the word ends in two different consonants, the final consonant is not doubled in derivatives formed by the addition of a termination beginning with a vowel: as, daub, daubed, dauber; need, needy; revel, reveled, reveeling; travel, traveling, traveler; prof, profled; stand, standing.

The final consonant is doubled in the derivatives of a few words ending in g, in order to diminish the liability to its being pronounced like j, before e or i: as, humb, humbugged, humbugging; pericig, periciggled. The word woolen is more generally thus written, in the United States, with one l; but in England it is written woollen.

NOTE. — There is a large class of words ending in a single consonant, and accented on some other syllable than the last, the final consonants of which are, by very many writers and lexicographers, doubled in their derivatives, unnecessarily and contrarily to analogy. These words are chiefly those ending in l, with also a few of other terminations. The following list, the words in which are chiefly verbs, includes the most important of those in regard to which usage varies: namely, apparel, barrel, bevel, bias, bucel, and its compounds, cucuel, cucharel, and all similar words ending in uel, coril, corol, camuel, chisel, compromit, counsel, cudgel, dial, disharel, davel, drivel, duel, empanel, enamel, equal, funnel, gambol, gravel, grovel, haniel, haniel, imperial, journal, kennel, kidnap, hobol, imurel, level, liol, marabout, manuel, marbol, metol, moatel, panel, parvel, parcel, penail, peril, piatel, pommel, quarrel, ravel, revel, riuel, rauel, chorel, shrirel, snivel, thasel, tsuel, travanel, travel, tannal, unwavel, vint, victual, worship. In this Dictionary, the derivatives of these words are made to conform to the rule, as recommended by Walker, Lowth, Ferry, and other eminent scholars.

§ 9. Derivatives formed from words ending in a double consonant, by adding one or more syllables, commonly retain both consonants: as, ebb, ebbing; odd, oddy; stiff, stiffness; fell, fellable; skill, skillful, skillfulness; will, willful, willfulness; dull, dullness; full, fullness. So also the double l is retained in the words installment, inthrallment, thrallhood, and enrollment (from install, inthrall, thrall, and enroll), in order to prevent the false pronunciation they might receive if spelled with one l. Many writers and lexicographers, especially in England, omit one l in these words, as also in the derivatives of skill, will, dull, and full, formed by adding the syllables ty and ness.

The derivatives of pontif are exceptions to the rule, being written with only one f; as, pontific, pontifical, pontifical, and the like. One f also is dropped in a few words formed by adding the termination ly to words ending in ll, in order to prevent the concurrence of three *f*s: as, ill, ully; dull, dully; full, fully.

§ 10. In derivatives formed from words ending with silent e, the e is generally retained when the termination begins with a consonant: as, pale, paleness; hate, hateful; move, movement. When, however, the e is immediately preceded by another vowel (except e), it is often dropped from the derivative: as, due, duly; ave, avul; and derivatives and compounds of these words.

The words wholly, nursing, wisdom, abridgment, acknowledgment, lodgment, judgment, and the compounds of some of these, are exceptions. The last four, however, are written, by many authors, abridgement, acknowledgement, lodgement, judgement.

§ 11. In derivatives formed from words ending with silent e, when the termination begins with a vowel, the e is generally omitted, except in the cases mentioned in the next paragraph: as, bride, bridal; use, usage; come, coming; shape, shaping; move, movable; fleece, fleecy; force, forcible.

The e is retained in the words hoing, shoing, and toeing (from hoe, shoe, and toe), in order to prevent doubt as to the pronunciation. It is retained, also, in the words dying, singeing, springeing, surging, tingeing (from dye, singe, springe, surge, tinge), to distinguish them from dying, singing, springing, surging, tinging (from die, sing, spring, surge, ting). The word mileage, as commonly written, does not omit the e, though it is sometimes, and more correctly, spelled miage. The words lineage, lineal, and pineal, though apparently exceptions, are not really such, since they are derived not directly from line and pine, but from the Latin linea (through the French), lineala, and pineala. The e, standing, in a derivative, before a termination beginning with c or o, and immediately after c or g, is retained in order to preserve the soft sounds of these consonants: as, peace, peaceable; notice, noticeable; manage, manageable; change, changeable; advantage, advantageous; outrage, outrageous; mortgage, mortgageor. The latter word is sometimes very improperly written mortgagor, and pronounced morf-ga-jor.

§ 12. In derivatives formed from words ending in te, by adding the termination ing, the e is dropped, and the t changed to y, in order to prevent two t's from coming together: as die, dying; ric, rying.

§ 13. In derivatives of words ending in y preceded by a consonant, and formed by appending any termination except one beginning with t, the y is usually changed into i: as, icy, icest, icily; mercy, merciless; foggy, fogginess; pity, pityful.

The derivatives of adjectives of one syllable ending in y preceded by a consonant, are exceptions, and usually retain the y: as, shy, shyness. But the adjectives drier and driest, from dry, are commonly written with i instead of y. Derivatives formed by adding the termination ship, as secretaryship, suretyship, ladyship, and the like, also retain the y. The words babyhood and ladykin are likewise exceptions. The y is also retained in the possessive case singular of nouns, when formed by adding s with the apostrophe: as, country's, everybody's.

§ 14. Derivatives formed by affixing a termination to words ending in y preceded by a vowel, generally retain the y unchanged: as, gay, gayety, gayly; obey, obeying; joy, joyful; gluey, glueyness.

The words daily, laid, paid, aid, anath, slain, and staid (from day, lay, pay, may, slay, and stay), with their compounds, are exceptions. Staid, however, is sometimes written stayed. Derivatives from words ending in ay, as colloquies, from colloquy, are not exceptions to the rule, as u, in such cases, is not strictly a vowel, but stands for the consonant u.

§ 15. Derivatives formed by appending a syllable beginning with a vowel to words ending with a vowel sound, generally retain the letter or letters representing such sound: as, hussa, hussaed; agree, agreeable, agreeing; weigh, weighting; bow, bowed; beau, beautified.

Derivatives of words of this class ending in silent e, as also those formed from words ending in double e by adding a termination beginning with e, drop the final e: as, hoe, hoed; agree, agreed. The cases mentioned in sections 11, 12, and 13 are also exceptions.

§ 16. Derivatives formed by prefixing one or more syllables to words ending in a double consonant commonly retain both consonants: as, rebuff, bevall, inthrall, foretell, fulfill, emboass (from buff, fall, thrall, tell, fill, boass).

The word until is an exception, being always written with one l. Those words of this class which end in ll are written by some authors, especially in England, with one l: as, befal, inthal, foretel, fulfil, enrol. The words distill and instill should be written with the l doubled, though they are often written distil and instil, with only one l.

§ 17. Compound words formed by joining two or more words commonly retain all the letters of the simple words: as, stiff-necked, wide-mouthed.

There are numerous exceptions to this rule, many of them compounds which by long use have acquired the force of single words. They are the following: namely, some compounds of all and well: as, almighty, almot, alone, already, also, altogether, always, withal, therewithal, wherewithal, welcome, welfare; — compounds of mas: as, Christmas, Michaelmas, etc.; — words of which the second part is the adjective full: as, artful, woeful; — also, the words chilblain, fulfill, namesake, neckerchief, numskull, pastime, standish, and wherever.

§ 18. The plural of nouns regularly ends in s, or, in certain classes of nouns, in es.

When the noun in the singular ends with such a sound that the sound of s can unite with it and be pronounced without forming a separate syllable, s only is added in forming the plural: as, sea, seas; voice, voices; canto, cantos; claw, claws; chief, chiefs; path, paths; gem, gems; act, acts. A few plurals from nouns ending in o preceded by a consonant, end in es: as, echo, echoes; cargo, cargoes; potato, potatoes. Other nouns of this class generally form their plurals regularly, though usage differs with regard to some of them. Those in which final o is preceded by a vowel form their plurals regularly. The plural of alkali is written alkalis or alkalies; that of rabbit, either rabbis or rabbies. With regard to other nouns ending in i usage differs, though they are more properly written with the termination i.

When the noun in the singular ends with such a sound (as that of ch, sh, j, s, z, or x) that the sound of s can not unite with it in pronunciation, but must form a separate syllable, e is inserted before s in forming the plural, unless the word ends with silent e, in which case the letter serves to form a separate syllable with s: as, church, churches; age, ages; lace, laces; gas, gases; maze, mazes.

To express the plural of a letter, figure, or any character or sign, or of a word mentioned without regard to its meaning, the letter s, generally preceded by the apostrophe, is appended, as in the phrases, "The two i's in all;" "The two O's in 400;" "The u's and wherefore's of the question."

§ 19. Nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant form their plural by adding es and changing y into i: as, mercy, mercies; sky, skies; pity, pities. This rule includes words ending in guy, in which u, being pronounced like u, is strictly a consonant: as, colloquy, colloquies. The plural of proper nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant, is formed by changing y into ies, according to the rule: as, "The three Maries." Many writers, however, form the plural of such words by simply adding s: as, "The three Marys."

xxx RULES FOR SPELLING CERTAIN CLASSES OF WORDS.

When the singular of a noun ends in y preceded by a vowel (except u having the power of u), the plural is regularly formed by adding s only: as, day, days; key, keys; money, moneys; attorney, attorneys; alloy, alloys; guy, guys. Some plurals of the latter class are often inaccurately written with the termination ies: as, monies, attorneyies, and the like.

§ 20. The plurals of a few nouns ending in f or fe are irregularly formed by changing f or fe into ves. The following words, with their compounds, are the principal examples: namely, life, lives; knife, knives; wife, wives; leaf, leaves; sheaf, sheaves; loaf, loaves; beef, beefs; thief, thieves; calf, calves; half, halves; elf, elves; shelf, shelves; self, selves; wolf, wolves. The plural of staff is sometimes written staffs, but more commonly staves, except when it means a corps of officers, either military or civil, in which sense it is always written staffs. The plural of wharf is generally written wharfs in England; in the United States it is more commonly but improperly written wharves, as it is also by some recent English writers. The plurals of hoof and turf, formerly written hooves and turves, are now written hoofs and turfs. The plurals of other nouns ending in f, fe, or ff, are formed regularly by the addition of s only.

§ 21. In the following nouns, the plural is distinguished from the singular only by a change of the vowel or vowel sound of the word: namely, man, men; woman, women; goose, geese; foot, feet; tooth, teeth; brother, brethren; louse, lice; mouse, mice. Words which end in the syllable man, and are not compounds, form their plurals regularly, by adding s only: as, cayman, caymans; desman, desmans; firman, firmans; talisman, talismans; German, Germans; Mussulman, Mussulmans.

§ 22. A few plurals end in en: namely, brother, brethren; child, children; ox, oxen. To these may be added the obsolete forms eyne, kine, shoon, hosen, housen (from eye, cow, shoe, hose, house), the first three of which, though they have received a slightly different form, end, as pronounced, with the sound of n.

§ 23. The words brother, die, pea, and penny, have each two plurals of different forms and with different significations: as, brothers, male children of the same parent, also, members of the same society, association, class, or profession; brethren, members of the same religious or ecclesiastical body, the word in this form being rarely used except in religious writings, or in scriptural language, where it also has the same meaning that brothers has in ordinary language; dies, implements for making impressions by stamping, or for making screws, also the cubical parts of pedestals; dice, the cubical blocks used in games of chance; peas, seeds of the pea plant, when a definite number is mentioned; pease, the same in bulk, or spoken of collectively; pennies, the coins, especially when a definite number is mentioned; pence, the amount reckoned by these coins.

§ 24. A few words, mostly names of animals, have the same form in the plural as in the singular: as, deer, sheep, trout, and the like.

§ 25. Many words adopted from foreign languages retain their original plurals: as, datum, data; criterion, criteria; genus, genera; larva, larvae; crisis, crises; matrix, matrices; focus, foci; monsieur, messieurs.

Many words of this class, while retaining the original plurals, have also a second, formed after the analogy of English words of similar termination: as, formula, formulas, or formulae; beau, beaux, or beaus; index, indices, or indexes; stratum, strata, or strata; bandit, banditti, or bandits; cherub, cherubim, or cherubs; seraph, seraphim, or seraphs. The plurals of the last two words are sometimes incorrectly written cherubims and seraphims, with double plural terminations, from ignorance or forgetfulness of the fact that, in Hebrew words, im is a plural ending.

§ 26. In certain loose compounds consisting of a noun followed by an adjective or other qualifying expression, the plural is commonly formed by making the same change in the noun as when it stands alone: as, court-martial, courts-martial; cousin-german, cousins-german; son-in-law, sons-in-law. When, however, the adjective is so closely joined to the noun that the compound has the force of a simple word, the plural of the compound is commonly formed like that of any other word of the same termination: as, cupful, cupfuls; handful, handfuls.

§ 27. There are many words, besides those mentioned in the preceding paragraphs, in respect to which usage, even that of the best authors, is variable. The most important of these words are mentioned in this and the succeeding sections.

The derivatives of the word villain, as villainous, villainy, etc., though often written villanous, villany, etc., properly retain the i, like those of other words similarly ending in ain: as, mountainous, from mountain; captaincy, from captain.

The words connection, defection, inflection, and reflection follow the spelling of the words connect, defect, inflect, and reflect, though often written, especially in England, connexion, deflexion, inflexion, and reflexion.

The word woe, though often written without the final e, should retain it, like most other nouns of one syllable and of similar form: as, doe, foe, hoe, toe, and the like. Monosyllables other than nouns, and words of more than one syllable, having a similar termination, omit the e: as, do, go, no, so, canto, motto, potato.

The words defense, expense, offense, and pretense are properly written thus, though often spelled with e instead of s, for the s belongs to the words from which they are derived, and is also used in all their derivatives.

The words drought and height were formerly written drouth and hight, and are still very often thus written in America.

The verb practice is thus written like the noun, in preference to the form practise, though the latter spelling is used by many writers, especially in England. The difference in spelling between the noun and the verb is properly observed, in words of this kind, only in such as are accented on the last syllable, as device, devise.

Derivatives of the Greek πῆμα (seat, base, side; pronounced hed'ra), as polyhedron, tetrahedron, octahedron, and the like, are properly thus written with h before the e of the termination, but are sometimes written polyedron, tetraedron, octaedron, etc., without the h.

§ 28. There is a class of words beginning with en or in, as enclose or inclose, enquire or inquire, ensure or insure, and the like, many of which take either form of the prefix indifferently. They are chiefly derived from the Latin, either directly or through the French, the prefix in belonging to the former language, and en to the latter. In some of these words, en is to be preferred; in others, in; in many of them, either may be used indifferently.

§ 29. There is a class of words ending in er, some of which are written by many authors with the termination re: as, center, meter, theater, etc., which are often written centre, metre, theatre, etc. Acres, chance, lucres, nares, massacre, and ogre, retain the termination re, in order to preserve the hard sound of the c and g.

§ 30. There are two classes of chemical words ending respectively, as more commonly written, in ide and ine, in regard to which usage has been variable. Most of them were formerly written without the final e; but it is now the almost universal practice to retain it: as, bromide, iodide, chlorine, fluorine, etc. The word tanin is always written without the final e. Oxide is now generally written with the termination ide, though formerly by many written oxyd, from the supposition that the y of the last syllable represented the v of the Greek ξέω; from which the word is derived; whereas the last syllable is simply the same as the termination of the words bromide, sulphide, and the like.

§ 31. There is a class of words ending, as pronounced, with the sound of long i, followed by z, some of which are differently written, by different authors, with either ise or ize to represent this sound: as, criticize or criticise; patronize or patronise. These words are mostly verbs, and are chiefly derived from Greek words ending in ιζειν, or from French words ending in iser or ise. Those formed from Greek words have the termination ize: as, amathematize, characterize, dramatize, lantalize. The words catechise and exorcise are exceptions. Those formed in an analogous manner from English words are likewise written with ize: as, albumenize, memorize, sensitize. Those derived from the French verb prendre (participle pris or prise) end in ise: as, apprise, comprise, emprise, enterprise, surprise. Of those formed from French words other than prendre, or which have corresponding forms in the French, a majority end in ise, though in respect to some of them usage is variable: as, civilize, satirize. The following are the principal English verbs ending in ise: namely, advertise, advise, affranchise, apprise, catechise, chastise, circumcise, comprise, compromise, criticise, denise, despise, devise, disfranchise, disfranchise, disguise, dicterise, emprise, enfranchise, enterprise, exercise, exorcise, franchise, manumise, misprize, promise, reprise, revise, supervise, surmise, surprise. It may be remarked that most of those in respect to which usage varies are more frequently written in England with the termination ise, and in the United States with the termination ize.

§ 32. The words mold and moli, and their compounds and derivatives, are written in this Dictionary with o instead of ou, in analogy with the words bold, bolt, coll, gold, etc., from which the u has been dropped. Many authors, however, write these words mould and mouli, and their derivatives in like manner.

§ 33. There is a numerous class of words almost universally written, in the United States, with the termination or, many of which are written, in England, with the termination our: as, candor, honor, labor, vigor. English usage, however, is not uniform with respect to these words, many being written with or in English books.

§ 34. There is a small class of words ending with the syllable ped (from Lat. pes, pedis, foot), the termination of some of which was formerly, and is still frequently, written pede: as, biped, centiped, milliped, quadruped, soliped, etc. The words biped and quadruped are universally written without the final e, and the others, according to the best usage, should be written in the same manner.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Foreign words inserted in the vocabulary, but not yet anglicized, are printed with two bars before them; as, || A-do-be, || Bag'a-telle, || Sal.

The hyphen in words which should be written or printed with a hyphen is indicated by a longer, heavier mark than that used in indicating syllabic division; as, E-lec'tro-mag-net'ic.

The figures following the respelling for pronunciation refer to sections of the Guide to Pronunciation, pp. v-xix.

In the respelling for pronunciation, when successive words in the same column begin with one or more syllables which are pronounced alike, the common part is usually omitted after the first word. Words ending in simple suffixes such as -bly, -ed (when not contracted), -ess, -est, -ing, -ish, -ive, -less, -ly, -ment, -ness, etc., are not usually respelled when the pronunciation of all but the suffix can be supplied from a preceding word. Otherwise they are respelled; as in the cases of Con'di-ment, Glad'ness, In'tro-spec'tive, De-gen'er-ate-ly, etc.

For plurals not given see the Rules for Spelling, §§ 18-26, pp. xxviii-xxxi.

For etymologies of prefixes and suffixes used without explanation in etymologies, see the list of Prefixes and Suffixes, pp. xx-xxvii. For meanings of suffixes forming derivatives run on without definition, see the same list.
